The present disclosure relates to battery packs, and more particularly to a battery pack that provides an optimal charge condition of each of the plurality of battery cells which constitute a battery module. Vehicle-mounted batteries are configured so that battery cells constituted by a plurality of battery cells can be isolated and charged by a switching element disposed between these battery cells. For example, in the event of a battery over-charge, the switching element configures a short-circuit between the battery cells. By thus eliminating a potential between the battery cells, the over-charge of the battery cells is prevented. In addition, in the event of a battery discharge, the switching element disconnects the battery cells from each other and isolates them. A potential between the battery cells is thus prevented, thereby preventing the battery cells from being over-discharged. References Category: Villages in Płońsk County Q: Setting the value of an object property from another property in an iteration Basically I need to be able to set a property on an object from another property within an iteration. e.g Object.Properties.ForEach(o => { o.MyProperty = 1 }) I would like to do something like: foreach (Dictionary.Entry de in ds) { if (de.Key == "MyProperty") { de.Key.Value = de.Value; // set de.Key.Value to the value of the current de.Value } } A: Your question is unclear. Which dictionary? Which property is the key? Which property is the value? And which property is missing? It seems you want to update the value of the property named "MyProperty" for all properties in a dictionary.
